b. The Assistant Director, OSO is responsible

(1) for the personal security of all covert and semi-covert personnel and for all OSO personnel overseas;

(2) for the day-by-day maintenance of personal and physical security within OSO;

(3) for the establishment and maintenance of a [redacted] for the benefit of OSO and, when requested, for other offices of CIO;

II. STATUS as of 1 JULY 1947.

3. Upon assumption of control of the former Security Division, P & A, by the Executive for I & S, the status and conditions existing within this division can be summarized as follows:

a. Due to the fact that no approved E/O for the Security Division had ever been issued and due to the fact that the overall division of functions had never been clearly drawn, there were the following deficiencies which were in the main circumstantial, which caused the operating personnel to work under great difficulties, and which in any event needed correction.

(1) Shortage of personnel - Unlike other offices of CIO, the peak load of the Security Office occurs in the formative period.

(2) Difficulty of branch, division, and unit heads to properly plan work, priorities, etc., due to lack of an established policy set for the Security Division as a whole.

(3) Need for establishment of clear-cut priorities for security investigations which would accord with operational policies of the Director and help to meet the back-log of investigations in the most efficacious

(4) Again, due to shortage of personnel, lack of accurate records and files depicting current progress of security matters.

(5) Security policy and security operations greatly lacked coordination in that functions had been in separate CIG offices and the Chief, Security Division, as well as Chief, Security Policy Branch, were hampered by following involved channels to accomplish such coordination.

(6) No security monitoring or maintenance had been given to the handling of classified information, including TOP SECRET CONTROL procedures.

(7) No monitoring system had been established for telephone conversations.

(8) Security officers had not been designated within all the various offices for the particular attention to maintenance of security under the chief of office. Furthermore, a system of continuing indoctrination after the initial indoctrination was badly needed for maintenance of security.

4. On the other hand, the undersigned found a very high quality of key personnel in the former Security Division, who had been accomplishing as much as possible under the various enumerated disadvantages.

III. PROGRESS AND ACTIVITIES during JULY 1947.

6. Investigation Branch.

a. The status of security investigations shown below shows an increased backlog. This backlog is largely due to the requirement of investigating the employees of FBIB and Documents Branch, the bulk of whom entered upon duty with CIG without security investigation. However, it is of interest to note that of this backlog, only six are applicant cases, and that as a result the authorized recruitment of new CIG employees has not been held up. A strenuous effort is being conducted in early August to clear up the backlog of FBIB employees.

- (1) Number of cases in the FBI as of 1 July 1947:
Number of incomplete cases in
I & B as of 1 July 1947:
